The Pastoral and the Academic - Sally Power 1996 One of the most widespread changes in secondary schools over the last thirty years has been the expansion and formalization of pastoral care. However, despite the considerable personnel resources invested in it, this tends to be a neglected area of curriculum theory and research. Through an empirically based analysis of pastoral care in the comprehensive school, this book looks at the history and discourse of pastoral care. Using data from two case-study schools, it explores the power relationship between the pastoral and academic dimensions, and the significance of this tension for the educational identities of staff and pupils. In particular, it considers whether pastoral interventions empower students or represent more subtle forms of social control. In conclusion, the implications of recent reforms for the future of pastoral care within the comprehensive school are assessed.

The Role of Traditional Leaders in Pastoral Conflict Resolution - Sied Muhumed Jibril 2013 Traditional leaders are still very important in trying to understand conflict in pastoral areas of Somali Regional State. Such leadership can be used to resolve conflicts if they would have the chance to obtain the support and respect of the Federal, Regional as well as the local administration. The pastoral communities have great respect and trust on the traditional way of pastoral conflict resolution rather than the modem state lead conflict resolution. As a result all most all cases of inter and intra-clan conflicts in the pastoral areas of Somali Region are resolved in a traditional way of conflict resolution. The central traditional methods of conflict resolution constitute the tradition of forgiveness, respect for elders and the transfer of resources as Mag or diya compensation payments. This book indicates how the role of traditional leaders is very important in resolving pastoral inter and intra clan conflicts than the modern governmental system.

Pastoral Care and Social Conflict - Pamela D. Coutre 1995-01-01 This volume examines a range of new pastoral problems encountered by ministry in a changing and increasingly polarized world of social differences. Eighteen scholars attempt to determine in what way and to what extent current models of care and counseling, as taught for a generation in our seminaries and widely practiced in ministry, are adequate for the pastoral needs of persons experiencing tensions that focus pastorally on issues like abortion, child abuse, and racism, and conflicts between the sexes, generations, economic classes, ethnic groups, races, and religious and moral cultures.

State-Customary Relation in Pastoral Conflict Management - Mohammed Endris 2011-09 In the past, many researchers have largely been devoted and scholarly works produced on institutions of conflict management. And a growing concern was recorded on the vitality of customary institutions on the process. However, most were very generalized and found no to explain the case in all areas especially to indigenous people who detached from state encroachment and where customary institutions mark a basis for conflict resolution. Emergence of state institutions to indigenous societies cannot as such directly challenge customary laws and dichotomy was not always to exist. Rather, customary institutions set their set of adaptive mechanisms which sometimes reverse the power relation. Therefore, this book provides a new insight on state-customary relation in pastoral conflict management explaining in terms of their basic essentialities, actual implementation and changes with regimes. The analysis of this work will be important for future efforts to integrated implementation of the formal and customary laws in conflict resolution. It is expected that this book can be used as an important resource for researchers interested in further exploration of the issue under study.

Resource Based Conflicts and Their Impact on Pastoral Livelihood - Medard Twinamatsiko 2013-01 The study concerns the interface of resource based conflicts and their impact on pastoral livelihood with reference to the Basongora pastoral community who have been at the centre of land conflicts as they claim ancestral rights to ownership of Queen Elizabeth National Park (QENP)and other neighboring pasturelands. This conflict has not only affected human race but also the environmental race. The study specifically established resources and how they have precipitated conflicts; the effects of the conflict; challenges involved in resolving this conflict and livelihood strategies and resolution mechanisms adopted. The findings revealed that, resource based conflicts have negatively impacted on pastoral livelihood and conservation as well. QINP conservation policies have not considered effective coexistence between the park and the pastoral community. The Government of Uganda could use this work to create a ground of building trust as an approach to reconcile conflicting parties. Policy makers and practitioners will be aided by this book to generate appropriate policies and guidelines towards addressing resource based conflicts in developing countries and the world at large.

Conflicts and Management Among Pastoral Communities in Kenya - Grace Jerotich Cheserek 2011-09 This book discusses the nature, causes and effects of conflicts among Marakwet and Pokot communities in northern Kenya. The book is a result of PhD thesis carried out in Rift Valley province. The objectives of the study were to establish the nature and causes of conflicts; evaluate the socio-economic and environmental impacts of the conflicts; investigate communities’ relationship to nature and their coping strategies in conflict management and resolution. The study used the Trajectory of the common data and Structural theory contextualising the findings. The findings revealed Pokot and Marakwet grazed systematically with livestock depleting one area of pasture, before they moved to another area. However, cutting trees for constructing homesteads and burning charcoal were resource depleting. The findings showed up to 59% of conflicts occurred during rainy season because of resources scarcity caused in a previous dry season. The purchase of guns is reported as a coping strategy in both communities. To resolve the conflicts both communities need to benefit from socio-economic development.

Devolution And Choice In Education - Geoff Whitty 1998-01-01 * What is the background to and significance of policies of devolution and choice in education that are currently fashionable in many parts of the world? * What has been the actual impact of these policies on school managers, teachers, students and local communities? * How might equity be preserved in systems of education where increased responsibility is delegated to the level of the school? This book examines recent school reforms in England and Wales, the USA, Australia, New Zealand and Sweden. It suggests that, at the same time as appearing to devolve power to individual schools and parents, governments have actually been increasing their own capacity to ‘steer’ the system at a distance. Focusing particularly on the ‘quasi-markets’ favoured by the New Right, the authors review the research evidence on the impact of the reforms to date. They conclude that there is no strong evidence to support the educational benefits claimed by the proponents of the reforms and considerable evidence that they are enabling advantaged schools and advantaged parents to maximise their advantages. They suggest that, if these damaging equity effects are to be avoided, there is an urgent need to redress the balance between consumer rights and citizen rights in education.

Taking Children Seriously - Steve Decker 1999-10-01 In times of great change and development in the education system, those children who experience difficulties in school because they are emotionally troubled are particularly vulnerable. Increasingly, schools are under pressure to produce results which appear good in the public domain, and so can feel forced to spend money on activities designed to enhance public reputation, consequently neglecting those pupils who are difficult to teach because they are emotionally disturbed. Taking Children Seriously has been written by those trained and working in this field to provide insights into how to apply ideas and theories taken from psychology and counselling to the context of education. The authors demonstrate to practising teachers approaches for working with feelings in the classroom and provide ideas which schools may wish to consider to supplement their present work with special needs pupils. Steve Decker is a Chartered Psychologist and Head of Counselling Division at Anglia Polytechnic University. Sandy Kirby is a counsellor and Professional Tutor at a London comprehensive. Angela Greenwood is an educational therapist and special needs co-ordinator who has worked in Britain and Zambia in the primary and pre-school sectors. Dudley moore is a counsellor and former headteacher of a special school. All four editors are founders of the Counselling and Therapy Service for Schools.

Transforming Pastoral Leadership-Quentin P. Kinnison 2016-05-20 For many congregations, change creates discomfort. Pastoral leaders are often expected to be experts who manage and control realities beyond their expertise, experience, and ability. That expectation, a product of modern approaches to leadership, views the pastor as responsible for maintaining the status quo. Transforming Pastoral Leadership responds to this context by challenging readers to rediscover key biblical themes around the shepherdship metaphor as well as key theological themes steeped in our historical faith narratives. Readers are challenged to consider the origins of our dominant leadership practices and to reconsider how Christ’s preeminence as King of the church is to be realised in our transformation of leadership practices that are faithful to his preeminence. To assist congregations, Transforming Pastoral Leadership suggests two processes that might help congregations discern God’s missional promptings as they move forward into God’s future and experience conflict as opportunities for transformation.

Teacher Subject Identity in Professional Practice-Clare Brooks 2016-03-31 Teacher Subject Identity in Professional Practice focuses on a key, but neglected, element of a teacher’s identity: that of their subject expertise. Studies of teachers’ professional practice have shown the importance of a teacher’s identity and the extent to which it can affect their resilience, commitment and ultimately their effectiveness. Drawing upon narrative research undertaken with a range of teachers over a period of 14 years, the book explores how subject expertise can play a significant role in teacher identity, acting as a professional compass guiding teachers at all levels of their professional practice. It reveals powerful individual stories of meaning-making which highlight the dynamic importance of teachers’ subject expertise. The book’s metaphor of a professional compass goes to the heart of teacher professionalism and provides a valuable mechanism to enable teachers to respond to challenges they face in their daily practice. It enables teachers to consider the moral dimensions of their practice, and can constitute a significant component in professional formation and identity. Throughout the book the importance of subject expertise for teachers’ professional practice is explored at a range of scales: from the classroom to broad education policy, and at different stages of a teacher’s career which offers readers a deeper understanding of the importance of subject expertise for teachers. Teacher Subject Identity in Professional Practice makes a significant contribution to an under-researched area. It identifies the role and significance of teachers’ subject expertise as a dimension of their teacher identity. The book is key reading for teacher educators, policy makers and researchers with an interest in teachers’ professional development and practice.

Strategies to Promote Inclusive Practice-Christina Tlstone 2003 This sequel to Promoting Inclusive Practice, assists professionals in the process of identifying and implementing policies that benefit pupils with special educational needs.

Pastoral Counseling:Where One Encounters the Enormity of God’s Love-Gerald Miller 2018-02-01 The pastoral counselor brings God’s presence to the counseling session. The counselor radiates God’s enormous unconditional love and forgiveness to the client. Clients come in because they are spiritually broken and prey to the allures of darkness-fear of abandonment from God and those they love, resentment, frustration, anxiety, and callousness. He is the prodigal son. Through empathy, compassion, and counseling the counselor together with them to the God who runs to meet him with joy, throws his arms around him, kisses him, forgives him, and makes him psychologically and spiritually whole again by giving him the signet ring. The pastoral counselor’s role is to facilitate this occurrence.

Pastoral Imagination-Eileen R. Campbell-Reed 2021-05-11 In Pastoral Imagination: Bringing the Practice of Ministry to Life, Eileen R. Campbell-Reed informs and inspires the practice of ministry through slices of “on the ground” learning experienced by seminarians, pastors, activists, and chaplains and gathered from qualitative studies of ministry. Each of the fifty chapters explores a single concept through story, reflection, and provocative open-ended questions designed to spark conversation between ministers and mentors, among ministry peers, or for personal journal reflections. The book provides a framework for understanding ministry as an embodied, relational, integrative, and spiritual practice. Pastoral Imagination is closely integrated with the author’s Three Minute Ministry Mentor web resource, which introduces the topics in the book through brief video presentations. The book serves as a coaching guide and a ministry mentor in its own right by expanding on these topics through the author’s reflections, observations, and questions. Addressing the importance of the practice of ministry, Campbell-Reed states: “Ministry itself, like most professions and complex practices, is dogged and driven by a ruthless desire to achieve. Yet to focus on achievement can be disastrous, especially if we slip over the steps for learning. To learn the practice of ministry—a multifaceted professional and spiritual practice—takes time and preparation, risk and responsibility, support and feedback.” The book can be used by individuals for personal growth; with groups in new-pastor retreats, CPE training programs, ministry peer groups, or supervision settings such as internship or field education; for devotional inspiration at staff meetings; and in seminary classrooms that prioritize teaching ministry as a practice.

The Challenges of Pastoral Ministry-Rev. Wilguymps Charles 2019-11-26 This book on “The Challenges of Pastoral Ministry” is a practical handbook and an educational guide that aims to sensitize and motivate pastors who are already at work in the Vineyard of the LORD as Church leaders, on the necessity to face, with the help of the Holy Spirit, the enormous challenges of their ministerial task in a careful and thoughtful way. They need also to address them with courage and determination. This book also warns new leaders, by awakening their awareness on what await them as ministers. Pastoral ministry is a very demanding work that should not be taken lightly but it’s a commitment and a responsibility that must be accepted with seriousness. This book will be helpful to every leader.

Conflict Transformation in the Family—Elleshi Ayo Mungure 2013-07-10

Pastoral Counseling: 1981-01-01 In the contemporary church, pastors take on many roles. One of the most important roles a pastor must play is that of counselor. However, this isn't always a natural fit for every pastor. In this creative and readable book, Wayne Oates offers a definitive argument for the history and future necessity of pastoral counseling.

When the Word Leads Your Pastoral Search—Chris Brauns 2011-01-01 At any given time there are thousands of churches seeking a lead pastor. While a great resume, a friendly smile and a memorable sermon will convince many, what should local congregations focus on to find a new shepherd? Chris Brauns believes to find a great preacher the search must focus on God's Word and how the candidate relates to it and preaches from it. This book is a must have resource for search committees and church leaders addressing the needs of churches in the transition of pastoral leadership. It assists by approaching their responsibilities in a biblical way and providing critical help in key practical matters. From the initial formation of a search committee to the final terms of agreement with the new pastor, Brauns shows you how to "major on the majors" and away from subjective approaches of evaluating candidates and their sermons. Great also for pastors or pastoral students to know how to prepare, the book includes such practical tools as interview questions for candidates and the top mistakes search committees make.

Pastoral Bearings—Jane F. Maynard 2010-03-18 Pastoral Bearings offers up ten studies that exemplify the usefulness of the lived religion paradigm to the field of pastoral theology. The volume presents detailed qualitative studies in the practices of individuals and groups and explores the implications of lived religion for interdisciplinary conversation, intercultural and gender analysis, and congregational studies.

Confirming the Pastoral Call—Joseph L. Umidi A guide to both sides of the candidate process. Valuable appendices help with selection of the search committee and offer self-evaluations for congregations and candidates.

Matching Pastoral Candidates and Churches—Joseph L. Umidi 2020-10-27 A guide to both sides of the candidate process With humor and insight born of experience, Joseph Umidi helps candidates approach a selection process by clarifying their personal vision for ministry, connecting heart to heart with decision makers, and asking the right people the right questions. Search committee members will find guidance in analyzing a church's readiness for change, determining what is most needed, and evaluating a candidate's strength in meeting those needs. Eleven appendices provide key model documents that will help the decision-making process.

Church Conflict—Charles H. Cosgrove 2004-10-01 If church is like a family, it fights like one too! As in any family, conflict in the church family is natural and inevitable. But the way the church family handles its fights can make or break ministry. By using stories and examples of real problems at actual churches, Cosgrove and Hatfield have applied family-systems theory to help us identify the hidden structural boundaries in any group relationship. They show how the dynamics and 'family rules' operating in the informal family-like church system powerfully influence how church members relate to each other.

Relationships—Richard H. Pfeiffer 2010-04-20 This is a clear and concise booklet (Essential Relationship Series) containing essential and innovative help for anyone in a relationship. Conflict of needs between partners inevitably leads to pain and turmoil requiring interpersonal skills and concepts. The presentation of effective conflict resolution skills and suggestions for dealing with distorted thinking will be of help to many.

Empathy and Confrontation in Pastoral Care—Ralph Underwood 2002-04-24

When Christ's Body Is Broken—Leanna K. Fuller 2016-03-03 When Christ's Body Is Broken tells the stories of two congregations in conflict. Although these churches had very different problems, they faced similar struggles: to articulate a faithful response to their concerns and to cope with the discord that threatened to tear their communities apart. Pastoral theologian Leanna K. Fuller shares these stories as a way of exploring the sources and dynamics of conflict in congregations. She argues that at the heart of such conflict lies anxiety triggered by encounters with difference. Bringing together resources from pastoral theology, psychodynamic theory, and social psychology, Fuller offers a theological reframing of conflict through categories of diversity, vulnerability, and hospitality—categories that, she argues, can encourage human beings to sit with the anxiety stirred by communal life and remain connected across differences. This reframing provides fertile ground out of which Fuller imagines concrete practices designed for conflicted communities and their leaders.

Role-Plays for Resolution—Mary Kendall Hope 2010-05-05 Role-Plays for Resolution is a workbook for training conflict resolution practitioners. Professionals from the fields of business, law, mediation, negotiation, arbitration and international dispute resolution may use this book to practice the skills needed to resolve conflicts. Students training for a degree or specialty in conflict resolution will find this a vital resource for exposure to specific subject areas. This book contains 70 role-plays in 12 separate categories to provide both existing professionals and academic instructors the examples needed to train individuals to address conflicts. Categories covered include divorce, community mediation, settlement mediation, estate planning mediation, pastoral mediation, peer mediation, church conflicts, negotiation, arbitration, facilitation, public policy debate, police negotiation, gang intervention, crisis intervention training, international mediation, and international conflict intervention. The final chapters of the book include a brief orientation for the address of international conflicts in real life situations. Every academic program in dispute or conflict analysis and resolution should own copies of this comprehensive set of role-plays. All professionals in the field of dispute resolution should own a copy of Role-Plays for Resolution, to provide the final components of certification to trainees. The topics covered include the most current and thorough list of role-plays compiled to date for gaining the skills needed to implement the skills conflict intervention. A History of Pastoral Care—G. R. Evans 2000-05-01 A history of pastoral care is a history of the Christian church in action. But if any sense is to be made of the centuries of Christian work and effort, not only the practicalities of making the message of the Gospel a reality on earth, but also the ideas which have shaped the attempt, century by century, must be examined. This is the history of 2000 years of thought and practice in Christian pastoral ministry. Until comparatively late in that story the bulk of the formative thinking took place in the Middle East and in Europe and this forms the background for recent developments in understanding human nature, and the ways in which that understanding has influenced our thinking in pastoral care. Subjects covered range from the Biblical foundations to the sects and new religious movements; from the Fathers, the monks, the Friars, the Templars to the changes at the end of the twentieth century.

Principal in the State of Victoria, Australia

This thesis explores the pastoral role exercised by the principals of 12 secondary schools. Included in the sample are schools from both the government and nongovernment sectors, schools administered by male and female principals and schools from urban and rural environments. Suggestions are made on how to reduce the conflict between the administrative and pastoral roles of principals, and a statement of policy and procedure on pastoral care as a prototype for schools in establishing their own pastoral care programs is provided.

Basic Types of Pastoral Care & Counseling

Basic Types of Pastoral Care and Counseling remains the standard in pastoral care and counseling. This third edition is enlarged and revised with updated resources, methods, exercises, and illustrations from actual counseling sessions. This book will help readers be sensitive to cultural diversity, ethical issues, and power dynamics as they practice holistic, growth-oriented pastoral care and counseling in the parish.
